TO CONSTRUCT A SECTION OF LEESBURG PIKE

One and Two-Tenths Miles To Be Built Shortly

MEETING LAST NIGHT

Road Will Extend From Corporate Limits West of Alexandria to Donaldson's Store.

A mile and two-tenths of the road known as the Leesburg Turnpike, extending from the corporate limits on King street westward to Donaldson's store, will be built just as soon as estimates are obtained. Announcement to this effect was made last night at a meeting of officials of Fairfax and Arlington counties held in the rooms of the Chamber of Commerce which was attended also by a number of Alexandria officials.

The proposed roadway will be eighteen fet wide and built of asphalt. It will be a continuation of the old Leesburg Pike. After its completion it will give a good roadway from here to Leesburg. Later on other sections of this highway will be improved and then there will be a splendid highway from here to Leesburg, a distance of thirty-six miles. Part of this road is in Arlington county and part in Fairfax county. Each county will bear its part of the cost of construction.

The meeting last night was presided over by Capt. George H. Evans, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce. Among those in attendance were Edward Duncan, of the board of supervisors of Arlington county; George E. Garrett, engineer for Arlington county; Frank Ballenger, chairman of the board of supervisors of Arlington county; Major J. M. Duncan, and City Engineer E. C. Dunn, Alexandria; Archie Hoxton and George Stuart, of the Episcopal High School; Mrs. W. A. Moncure, Mr. and Mrs. B. B. Cline and Mr. and Mrs. Darling, of King street road.

BARACA OFFICERS

Plan Big Winter Program—Banquet To Be Given in November

Officers of the J .R. N. Curtin Memorial Baraca Class, of the First Baptist Church, were recently elected and have been installed in their offices and are as follows: E. R. Clark, president; I. S. Carpenter, first vice president; C. M. Wells, second vice-resident; W. M. Toppin, secretary; L. C. Lane, assistant secretary; G. J. Minor, treasurer; N. L. Williamson, teacher; R. E. Knight, Jr., Assistant teacher; and Miss Lilliam Amos, pianist.

The president, E. R .Clark, is now in New Orleans and the vice president, I. S. Carenter, is acting in his place at the present time. A very interesting letter has been received from the president in which he states that he hopes to be back with the class in a short time.

The class is planning a great winter program. Many enjoyable social affairs are planned, among which is a banquet which is to be given some time in the latter part of November. A membership campaign is to be launched in the near future and it is hoped that wonderful results may be obtained. Old members who have, for various reasons, been unable to attend during the summer are now coming back and the class is increasing in membership rapidly. Mr. Knight will teach the class on next Sunday, and it is hoped that every Baraca will be out to hear his discussion of the lesson. All are cordially invited to join the class. Come out next Sunday morning and see what this great Bible Class is doing.

WASHINGTON DAY BY DAY

From Our Correspondent

Washington, Oct. 19.—Dr. Cary Grayson, who was President Wilson's physician during all of his long illness and still attends the former occupant of the White House, is a graduate of William and Mary College and was one of those who left Washington to attend the installation of the new president of that institution. He was not a guest on the Mayflower, however, as he desired to leave before the Presidential party departed for Williamsburg, Yorktown and Jamestown. Since being detached from the White House, Admiral Grayson has been in charge of the Naval Dispensary in this city.

Major General C. T. Menoher, former chief of the army air service, who, not long ago, visited Baltimore for the purpose of looking over possible sites for a government flying field, says he can prove that his nose is longer than his arm. As evidence, he tells this story:

"A few nights ago, I was roaming around a dark room and while I had both arms extended searching for an open door my nose bumped it first."

General Menoher's joke is going the rounds of army circles in Washington and has created no end of amusement. As a matter of fact, the General's proboscis is not of unusual length at all.

Senator Arthur Capper, of Kansas, is much gratified over the efforts of Senator Smoot, of Utah, to effect economics in Uncle Sam's printing bills.

"I am amazed," says the Kansas Senator, "at the number of publications printed in Washington at the expense of the government. Nearly 100 publications are printed and circulated at federal expense. Every Department of the government issues some sort of a bulletin, news letter or magazine. Many of them are never read, or read by so few that it is an utter waste of public money to print them. There are countless reports, never opened, making huge volumes. Two reforms should be adopted by the government in this respect. In the first place, no government publication should be issued without specific authority of Congress. The number of publications should be limited to those that are absolutely necessary Then I should like to see the House abolish its leave to print rule, which permits a member to print in the Congressional Record remarks never made on the floor of the House."

Representative Benjamin K. Focht, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House District of Columbia Committee, says he got his first training as a statesman an deditor while dispensing soda water years ago. He is editor of the Saturday News published at Lewisburg, Pa.

"As a soda water boy," he says, "I got all the news that was fit to print and much that had to be expurgated. Furthermore, my training in facing angry and disgruntled customers as a soda water dispenser prepared me to endure the taunts of the members of the House without flinch ing."

Though he is as serious and sober as a judge, Senator Simmons, of North Carolina, ranking Democrat on the Finance Committee, possesses a keen sense of humor which asserts itself on the most unexpected occasions.

During the hearings on the tariff bill, Senator McNary, of Oregon, a pronounced protectionist, appeared before the Finance Committee to urge a protective tariff on maraschino cherries, which are grown in great abundance on the Pacific coast.

"Are those the sort of cherries they put in cocktails?" asked Senator Simmons, recalling to some committee members present memories of pre-Volstead days.

"They are," admitted Senator McNary.

"Then I'm for protection," said Senator Simmons with a merry twinkle in his eye.

Incidentally, the North Carolina Senator is one of the "dry" Senators in Congress.

According to the records of the U. S. Pension Office theer are still 71 surviving widows of veterans of the War of 1812. On its face this report would indicate that those old ladies must be in the neighborhood of 125 years of age, which would test one's credulity.

However, the pension Office explains that many of the soldiers of the War of 1812 were mere boys, say from 16 to 18 years of age. Now, some of them 40 or 50 years after the war, married a second wife, who was compartively young. So a woman could be a widow of a veteran of the War of 1812 and still be only in her eighties.

Administration Said to Have Adopted Atterbury's Plan as Its Program. Several Unions Try to Avert Strike

Washigton, Oct. 19.—A general reduction in freight rates to follow the 12 per cent cut in railway wages, already ordered, and the championship by the Administration of this program as a strike settlement policy, seemed to be definitely forecast today by intimations from high official sources.

There was reason to believe this afternoon that before many days have passed a formal nnouncement will be made by the Interstate Commerce Commission of an order carrying into effect, broadly speaking, the Atterbury plan of action which has been publicly indorsed by the public group of the Railroad Labor Board.

It is confidently expected that if this action is taken as a result of joint consideration of the railway wage and railway rate problem by the two regulatory agencies of the Government, the Harding Administration will find an early opportunity to give it full approval and to urge its acceptance in good faith by both the railroad executives and the employes.

Whether such a program on the part of the Government will serve to stop the threatened strike is of course debatable, but the feeling continues to grow in Washington that such a policy as outlined, if rigidly adhered to by the Administration, will have at least a deterring effect and may provide their leaders with an acceptble avenue of retreat.

The Chicago conference betwen the Labor Board and brotherhood executives, although referred to in official circles as "informal," nevertheless is regarded as a step taken to determine whether or not in the creation of the Railroad Labor Board the Government has founded a totally "impotent institution," as one high official referred to the body today.

If this conference fails to avert the strike, then the board will be a futile agency, since one of the two interests over which it has jurisdiction will have ignored its authority.

BABY SHOW PLANS

Committee Plan To Avoid Confusion For Registrants

The committee in charge of the Baby Show, for the benefit of the Alexandria Hospital, to be held in the Young People's Building, next Thursday, beginning at 2 p. m., has made many improvements upon the arrangements of last year's Baby Show.

The committee on registration, Mrs. Louis N. Duffey and Miss Ruth Spinks, have planned ample accomodations for the registrants, to avoid any confusion in the entries. The committee will be in the Young People's building at noon on Tuesday, ready to register the contestants for prizes. Each child will receive a numbered tag and the name of the child will be entered upon the books of the committee. The children's name will not be announced until the prizes are awarded.

In connection with this feature of the afternoon, this committee is arranging a dressing room on the lower floor of the building, where children's wraps may be checked.

Ratifies Treaties With Germany, Austria and Hungary Yesterday

14 DEMOCRATS FAVOR

Borah, of Idaho, and La Follette, of Wisconsin, vote against Ratification.

Washington, October 19.—The Administation's peace treaties with Germany, Austria and Hungary were ratified by the Senate tonight, the vote on the first two being 66 to 20, or eight more than teh necessary two-thirds, and in the case of the Hungarian treaty, due to the absence of three Senators, being 66 to 17.

The Senate action completed the Administration's immediate peace program and brought a full state of peace with the principal enemy powers. Remaining only are the formal exchanges of ratification except in the case of the Hungarian treaty, as that Government alone has yet to complete parliamentary action on the treaty.

Fourteen Democrats, on the other hand, supported the treaties, while two more were paired against ratification, vo-

Richmond—State Senator Morgan R. Mills announced today that when the general assembly meets in January, he would offer a bill for the creation of a state bureau on soldier relief. President Harding at William and Mary

Delivers Principal Address at Installation of New President of Famous Old Institution at Williamsburg

ALSO SPEAKS AT YORKTOWN

Presidental Party, Which Includes Members of Cabinet And Other Distinguished Persons, Left Last Night On Mayflower For Historic Virginia Town—Delivers Speech in Yorktown in Forenoon.

President Harding was the principal speaker at the ceremonies attending the installation of President J. A. C. Candler ,at William and Mary College, Williamsburg, today. The presidential party left Washington yesterday evening on the Mayflower. Besides the President and Mrs. Harding the party consisted of the Secretary of State and Mrs. Hughes, the Secretary of the Treasury, the Secretary of War, the Secretary of Commerce and Mrs. Hoover, Prince de Bearn, Charge D'Affaires of the French Embassy, George B. Christian, Jr., Secretary to the President; Mr. and Mrs. W. W. Wrigley, Representative C. Bascom Slemp, of Virginia, Brig. Gen. Charles E. Sawyer, and Col. C. O. Sherrill, the President's military aid.

Before proceeding to Williamsburg, the presidenital party made a stop at Yorktown, where the President delivered a speech at 10 o'clock this morning. The speeches follow.

Members of the Faculty, friends of William and Mary College, My Countrymen all: It is good to stand at this educational shrine, in the atmosphere of the Old Dominion, catching the spirit of early America, and sensing the early purpose to give the educational impulse to American accomplishment. Perhaps I feel the partiality of an Ohioan for mother colony, since we do not forget that Ohio and the sisterhood of States wrought out of the Northwest territory were Virginia's magnificent gift to the Union. It was our fortune in Ohio, more than a century ago, to erect a State through the blend of New Eanglanders, Pennsylvanians, and Virginians, and the succeeding generations have watched the westward march of the Star of Empire until we join today in the glories and achievements of the great Republic—our common country.

I like to speak of it now, because I know the very soul of our common pride in America. We grew sectional once, but we of North and South alike made such a sacrificial offering of good American blood on the soil of Virginia that the concord sprang up from the seeds planted a century and a half ago, and the bloom is that of a gratefully united Republic, with one purpose, one pride, one confidence, one constitution, one people, and one flag.

Its genius for drawing close to the spirit of the times, for always contributing greatly to the leadership of great affairs, has been the abiding glory of William and Mary. The spirit of human liberty—of that liberty that dares to build, to experiment, to found new institutes of association and conduct—has always thrived here. Here, I think we may safely infer, where the campus was the common ground between the old State House and the college structures, is to be found the oldest inspiration of the State university system which has done so much for liberal and truly democratic education. Here came Jefferson, author of the immortal Declaration, to expand a medieval college into a modern university on lines as broad as his own concept of human rights; here he found an atmosphere in which to TODAY'S THOUGHT To be of no church is dangerous. Religion, of which the rewards are distant, and which is animated only by faith and hope, will glide by degrees out of the mind unless it be invigorated and reimpressed by external ordinances, by stated calls to worship, and the salutary influence of of example.

THE PEOPLE'S HIGHWAYS

On the western continent, from Canada to Patagonia, are two historic terms, still in use, that are graphic in their significance. In all the English-speaking states there are to be found today, stretches of public road that are known as the "King's Highway." In the Spanish-speaking countries, without exception, this same character of public road is called "Camino Real"—or, Royal Road, or, again, the King's Highway. From times, perhaps pre-historic, the sovereignty has built the roads and the people have used them. But when the steam locomotive was invented, private capital rushed in where governments feared to tread, and the result has been that the people's roads have come into the ownership and control of individuals and corporations.

A highway, or public road, is as essential to everyday life as the air or the light of day. Means of communication, of transportation, of every species of human intercourse, is all-important. Without it civilization would stifle over night. In these times, especially, where millions of human beings are congregated thickly together in the pursuit of every vocation, save that of food production from the soil, starvation would ensue in a few weeks once the highways from the farms were clogged or stopped in their ceaseless traffic. Millions would perish from cold in the winter months. The sick, the feeble, the infants, would be the first to succumb. During the late war the terror of England was that the submarines would stop her food supplies by closing the trackless highways of the ocean. Her food stuffs must be constantly replenished, as her stocks ahead are scarcely ever provided for more than her daily needs.

The railroad is emphatically the modern highway. To obstruct its operations in these times is little short of wholesale murder. Yet that is what is now seriously proposed by certain classes of our fellow-citizens who cannot agree upon the terms of compensation for labor had and performed. We do not here attempt to say on which side the justice lies; and when our own lives and the lives of our families are endangered, to say nothing of the deprivation of comforts, or even necessities, of the daily existence of thousands and millions of our fellow citizens, we are strongly constrained to say that it does not greatly matter.

As far as wages go, from the figures we have seen, the railroad employees enjoy far higher compensation today than the teachers and the preachers and the clerks and a dozen other vocations that we can recall. They may be worth more; they may be greatly underpaid; the railroad managers may be unjust and tyrannous and grasping. All this may be true, but the remedy does not lie at the expense of the lives and the well-being of the ninety millions of the people of this country who are neither railroad employers nor employees. It neither lies there nor shall it lie there, now and forevermore. We may as well get this understood for all time to come.

We are hinting at no fault; we are suggesting no measures of adjustment. We simply iterate that the wheels must be kept moving.

We desire here to pay some tribute of admiration to the sturdy figure who is the first law-officer of the land. We refer to the Attorney-General of the United States—Harry M. Daugherty. An Irish name with a true American heart. We approve his stand. We commend his utterance. He is the attorney-general of the whole people, not of any sect or section, clique or class. We feel safe with him at the helm. The government will sustain him and the country at large applaud him.

We commend his firm, conservative utterance, and are assured that the course he has chosen in the present serious condition of affairs is that of wisdom and will make for a peaceable and righteous settlement.

When Mr. Jones was saved from the frying pan—

They talk yet of the change that came over Jones. Some said it was psychology. Some said it was a miracle. All said it was a mystery.

When they asked Jones, he said it was liberation from slavery—slavery to the frying pan, and to grease and starch.

Jones used to take his breakfast fried, and followed this with a heavy lunch.

In those days they said at the office: "Old Jones has a secret sorrow and he's sore on the world."

One day Jones started late—no time for the usual breakfast to be cooked.

Jones had a breakfast on Grape-Nuts with good cream. He was delighted with the crispness and rich flavor. Felt satisfied and "fed." Tried it again at lunch. Kept on breakfasting that way—often lunching, too.

Jones began to "perk up," talk up, step up—GET up.

"Let Jones show you how to do this," they began to say at the office.

As to Jones—he said: "That's a great food—GRAPE-NUTS."

There are thousands of Joneses, both kinds—reckless feeders and wise feeders.

"There's a Reason" for Grape-Nuts

—the perfected goodness of whole wheat and malted barley—delicious, nourishing, ready to eat. All grocers.

Capt. Geo. H. Evans Makes Gift to Playgrounds Association

The Playground Association wish to give public recognition for the gift of a desk from Captain George Evans, this was the property of the "Sharps and Flats" a musical organization that hos now disbanded, and the Playground Association will as soon as possible very gladly place it in the new house that has been erected on the Queen street grounds. This little house is an important part of the equipment of the Playground and is especially useful in the spring and fall of the year.

Through the kindness of several friends, the expense of erecting the house has been greatly reduced. Mr. Lehere, superintendent of the Eastern Wrecking Company, of New York, donated from Camp Humphreys the windows, door, roof, etc. Mr. Owens, of the Southern Plumbing Company, gave the use of his auto truck to bring the material from the Camp to Alexandria.

Mr. and Mrs. Diener have made a most generous offer to the President by which it is expected quite a sum of money will be raised. The Manhattan Cleaning and Dyeing Establishment of Washington, D. C., of which Bendheim is the agent, has offered to clean gloves at 10 cents a pair, the regular price being 15 cents. Tickets are to be furnished to the Playground Association with the price 10 cents marked on each ticket, and with the presentation of the ticket. Mr. Diener will forward the gloves to the cleaning establishment The money is to be kept by the one who sells the ticket, there is absolutely no string tied to it, every ticket that is sold means 10 cents clear profit.

Mr. Diener could have given this opportunity to any organization he desired, but in view of the splendid work that is being accomplished on the Playground, he felt that he wished to throw this chance of making money to the Playground Association, who appreciate his kindness and have no doubt of a very substantial sum being realized in this way.

The tickets are in charge of the Executive Board and are being handled by the ladies. Also a number of tickets are placed with Miss Howard on the Queen street Playground.

President Harding at William and Mary

develop those noble sentiments of mankind's fraternity which enabled him, years after writing our own Declaration of Independence, to become one of the mortal inspirations and intellectual counsellors of the French Revolution. Here Washington was granted a degree, and here he served as chancellor. From this institution were graduated three Presidents—Jefferson, Monroe, and Tyler. The great lawgiver of the young Republic, John Marshall, was another alumnus; and so was George Wythe, signer of the Declaration and preceptor to Marshall and Jefferson.

But it would be impossible to attempt a catalogue of the great Americans who have received education and inspiration here. That is already yours, and a cherished possession. Their list would include literally a host of eminent names from the beginnings of this continent. From the earliest wars of the colonists with the Inidans, down through all the struggles for making and establishing our country, the sons of William and Mary have played great parts. They have filled our halls of legislation, have been builders of new States, have adorned the bench, and honored the bar. Always they have been moved by the high ambitions of unstinted, unselfish service.

The very name of the university suggests devotion to liberty and liberty's institutions. Occupying historic ground in the midst of the peninsula on which were made the first plantings of Anglo-Saxon institutions in this continent, it has been the center of great events from its beginnings. In the college building were quartered French troops after the surrender at Yorktown; and in the peninsular campaign of the civil War the college buildings were burned and the institution well-nigh irreparably crippled. Only the devotion of officers and alumni made its resuscitation, years afterwards, possible. But it was accomplished; and today William and Mary, firmly established, proud of its historic past, confident of its future, assured of its place in the affections of Virginia, the South, and the Nation, looks out on a prospect of yet more glorious achievement. For every reason of both sentiment and utility I give you my heartfelt wish that the effort to endow, to insure, to establish and expand this pioneer among American universities, may succeed even beyond your fondest hopes.

If you will analize the traditions of William and Mary you will agree with me that George Wythe, whom Jefferson lovingly and reverently called "the Aristides of Aemrica," could never have exerted so determining an influence over his pupils had their associations been the casual ones of student and teacher in a great modern university. And there was Col. Ewell, soldier and scholar, who held the presidency of his beloved William and Wary during the years following the Civil War, when for want of funds the university suspended. There were neither students nor money; the buildings had been left in ruins in the wake of war; but there was the unbroken faith, the stout heart of that grand old man whom the late Senator Hoar thus described in a speech at Harvard in 1886:

"The stout hearted old president still rings the morning bell and keeps the charter alive; and I want to salute him today from Harvard, and I should value it more than any public honor or private good fortune that could come to me if I might live to see that old historic college of Virginia endowed anew with liberal aid of the sons of Harvard."

Col. Ewell's affection for his alma mater was the sentiment that thousands of men entertain for the small cilleges that afforded them the education they could never have secured at great institutions. Our trouble is not that there are too many small colleges, but that there are not enough of them. In this teaming. this riotously rich and growing America, they will not stay small. The small college of yesterday is the great school of today; the pioneer prairie universities of a few decades ago now count their faculties in hundreds, their students far into the thousands, and are wonders of the academic world. Let us not fear for the place of the small college in American life; let us rather give it all the encouragement in its beginnings and in those periods of struggle and depression such as William and Mary has so many times known and so splendidly survived.

In no country or age has there been so constant and generous support for education. Wise men have seen in this marked American charcteristic an eloquent testimony to the soundness of our individualistic society, and the security of these institution of popular government on which it rests. At the last, our hopes for the evolution of a constantly improving system of human organization will find their justification in the widening, the deepening, the universalization of that intelligence, that moral consciousness which furnish inspiration for every human advance. Believing this, and convinced that the American Nation believes it, I salute as high exemplar and ideal the spirit that has fostered, maintained, and is now sum-

VIRGINIA A. C. SWAMPS NATIONAL A. C.

By the score of 47 to 6, the Virginia A. C. walked over the National A. C., of Washington, in a game that was more bitterly contested than the score indicates. The Virginians got the jump on the Washington boys during the first quarter and after that ran them ragged. Although with alarge score against them, the Nationals did not become discouraged and played as hard during the last quarter as the first. The line plunging of Peyton and Owens was the feature of the game, both boys making a number of touchdowns. Howard and Rowan made several end runs for large gains. Rowan also intercepted a forward pass and got within yard of the goal line before being downed. Quarterbacks Nugent and Bitzer put the old time pep into the Virginian front line, by their signal calling and line hitting. Chauncey and Poss in the backline for the first time, showed up well, while on the ends, Wynncoff, Gilray, Moore and Yates, made some beautiful tackling. Jumbo Raisons, after several years out of the game, staged a "comeback" and showed the fans how to play real football in the backline. "Big Nine" Summers held firm as usual, and everything went off fine. Next Sunday the Virginians will journey to Georgetown to play the "Knicks" in the Hollow, and would like everybody in town to make the trip and see a real football game.

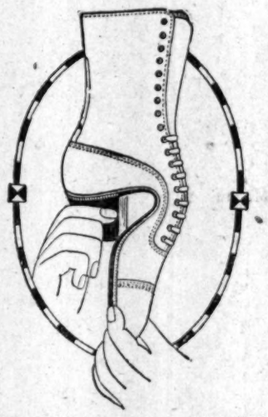
And you will get a wonderful pleasure out of walking this fall—your health will improve perceptibly—the glow of happy well-being will show in your face—if you walk in the right kind of shoes!

Cantilever Shoes are the shoes you ought to wear. They will do so much for your feet, besides conforming to the new styles. For Dame Fashion, the autocrat, has come down from her high horse to approve the tremendout popularity of properly shaped shoes like the Cantilever.



The Cantilever arch is flexible, like the arch of your foot. This makes walking easy. Circulation is encouraged. There is no stiffness to restrain the muscles, no rigid encasement to press on the nerves. The flexible shank also supports your foot restfully and healthfully when you have to stand, so you don't get tired, either waiting or walking.

Magnificent autumnal sunsets are ahead of us. And long evenings. Wear comfortable shoes in daytime and be fresh and buoyant at night! Cantilever. Shoes are sold in Washington only by

IMPARTIALITY

Our deputy sheriff has begun to collect fines for not performing a tour of duty from the delinquent drafts; and who, think you reader, is the first victim? No less a person than the clerk and nephew of our Congressman! ! But is the money paid? Poh! Poh!—don't be too inquisitive. The boy was taken into custody—swore he was not able to pay the fine, and was discharged—"So clean as a ribband." Suppose some poor man had to leave his wife and children and go in this clerk's place? That makes no difference—The man who serves us in congress has a right to keep his clerk and his monish too. Don't he serve the people in congress? Must he not have a clerk to do his business in his absence? Then pray have no more of your seditious grumbling—all is fair and impartial—who will presume to grumble at paying his fine when our congressman's clerk has went to jail and paid it. Shame on the Quakers and Tories—let them hence forward learn to pay their money without growling. What is money compared to—but mum—More hereafter.

Communications

Editor The Gazette:

My time here is short now as I will be going away in a few days and I want to thank the people of this city that were kind enough to patronize me. I sold many papers throughout the city also took quite a few subscriptions. I prayed in many homes here every day also preached on the street to interested audiences many times. I love my work and have greatly enjoyed my stay here in this city and the Lord willing I am coming back again. I am doing all I can to get people interested more in the bible and prayer. I greatly appreciate the Gazette, I have read it every day since I arrived here and I always read the scripture lesson that appears at the bottom of the front page each day. I am praying for an old time revival to break out in this town. We have to much sham religion. I believe in the old time religion, the kind that stops a man from doing everything that is bad. A real christian loves everybody, he has no bad habits of any kind, he is not selfish, he is happy and contented. I thank God today for the joys of the christian life. My next stop will be Fredericksburg.

Respectfully
Rev. Tom Rothrock,
Pillar of Fire Missionary.

There is a difference in "If You Only Knew" from the ordinary run of Popular songs. Elliott Shaw sings it in a very likable fashion. That suappy Xylophone specialist, George Green wrote "Just a Kiss From You" the reverse recording, pleasingly sung by Sam Ash.

Weak Blood Is A Real Barrier

Growing Children Often Need Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Some children grow too quickly—it saps their strength. They lapse into careless, desultory habits or develop a shrinking attitude. Their faces look pinched.

The blood becomes overtaxed by too rapid growth; and poisons from the system take the place of strength-giving red corpuscles in the blood. Red corpuscles are those little red particles that swim in the blood and give it its color. Gradually that choild loses interest in its play.

Poor blood needs the building that the iron in Gude's Pepto-Mangan gives to weakened blood. Gude's Pepto Mangan enriches the blood by increasing the number of red corpuscles, and restores the blood by driving out the poisons. When the revived blood gets to work, the appetite becomes what a growing child's should be. Your druggist has Gude's Pepto--Mangan in liquid or tablet form. The name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" is on every package. Adv.

Preridents Harding at William and Mary

moning to a new place and greatness, this Spartan among American universities, the College of William and Mary, in Virginia.

The President's remarks at Yorktown were, in part, as follows:

Fellow Americans: The name of old Yorktown has ever held for Americans a significance unlike that of any other name in our annals. On this historic peninsula were conducted major operations in our struggle for independence and our war for national unity. A few miles away, across the river, was made at Jamestown the first permanent settlement of our race on this continent, while your historic Yorktown itself was one of the very earlyest settlements.

Here, a hundred and forty years ago today, Washington accepted the surrender which meant at last the freedom of the colonies, the establishment of national independence, the assurance of this great experiment in popular government which we have since conducted. Here came the victory which answered the colonial aspirations, but which left them spent and confused in the chaos of their triumph. Here came the great turning point in history, old world and new which first revealed that freedom needed the agencies for its preservation. The marvel is not that the war had succeeded; the stupendous thing is that out of the varying conditions, conflicting ideas, and threatening jealousies the victors were able to unite in laying the foundations on which we continue to build with full confidence today. Surely a God-given destiny must have inspired and an infinite hand assisted in directing.

It is good to dwell in the atmosphere of historic Yorktown and to recall the lessons of the immortal Washington, because our own feelings of devotion are thereby emphasized. We could not wish ours to be other than a forward-looking republic, but we will fail in coming to the supreme fulfillment if we do not recall the beginning, and the unalterable foundation on which we have builded.

Washington's straggling and decrepit army of a well-nigh exhausted cause, had been operating before New York, hundreds of miles away. The enemy, controlling the seas, had undertaken a campaign here in the Old Dominion, to separte North from South, to reconquer Virginia, and to break the back of the Confederation. But there was never a chance to separate Virginia from the cause of fredom. Washington knew it, and with the unerring eye of his calm genius, saw his opportunity to end the long struggle. His campaign of Yorktown testified a military talent not second to any which history has recorded. Almost before the enemy suspected his plan. Washington had achieved the seemingly impossible feat of transferring his army four hundred miles to this peninsula; had invested Yorktown, and consolidated here the forces of the colonies North and South, and of their great ally, France, both on land and sea. So rapid was the operation that almost before the enemy force had sensed its danger the French and American troops had stormed the outer works of Yorktown and forced a situation which left only surrender to the British.

WOMEN VOTERS IN W. VA.

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—A message from a woman of West Virginia to the women of Virginia, in which is discussed some of the evils of Republican domination in the former state, has been received at Democratic Campaign Headquarters here and is given out, in part, to the state press. The author of the communication is Mrs. G. W. Ford, of Grafton, West Virginia, Mrs. Ford says:

"They immediately began an orgy of spending that was unparalleled in the state, appropriating millions of dollars when the state treasury was already depleted; creating nw offices as "political plums," which entailed a large expenditure for salaries for officials who were merly figure heads. So impoverished has the state become that the road bonds had to be taken over by private individuals in order to start our road building.

"The straw that broke the camel's back was the passage of a bill to protect the coal, oil and gas interests and put the burden of taxation on the poor man. This bill has had the result which was predicted for it by its enemies, as it is driving and keeping out hundred of manufacturers who cannot afford to pay the taxes which this bill imposes, and which taxes must of necessity come out of the pocket of the consumer, while the big interests are exploiting the rich natural resources of our state and escaping taxation."

The writer goes on at great length to impress upon her sisters in Virginia the evils resulting in our neighbor state from the Republican party getting in control. She urges the Democratic women to go to the polls in Virginia in November and each do her bit towards killing forever Republican political ambition South of the line.

How to Be Healthy

Practical Talks on Disease Prevention

PUBLIC HEALTH IS NATIONAL WEALTH

By DR. LOUIS I. DUBLIN,
Statistician, Metropolitan Life Insurance Co.

THE movement to conserve human life is dictated even by the crudest economic motives. An increase in the average span of life adds to the potential wealth of the country; whatever curtails the life span destroys the national wealth. The public health work of the last fifty years, by cutting the death rate from such diseases as malaria, typhoid fever, smallpox, cholera, yellow fever, and tuberculosis, and also from accidents, is, in large measure, responsible for the addition of over ten years to the average lifetime of man. In 1855, the expectation of life of a person in Massachusetts was about 40 years; according to the most recent figures, it is well over 50 years. It is estimated most conservatively, that we produce more than we consume each year to the small amount of $100 per capita. The addition of only one year of life per person is, therefore, equivalent to the addition of more than ten billion dollars to the national wealth of our country.

This is not all. A man or woman is worth more to his or her country when well than when sick. Illness is an important source of inefficiency and non-production. We lose on the average about seven days each year from sickness, or, about 2 per cent of our working time. In terms of money lost from wages, the figure mounts to not less than $700,000,000 annually. At present high wages, the total will reach one billion dollars especially if the cost of medical care, drugs, appliances, etc., is included. A very large part of all this money could be saved by applying more intensively the public health measures which we know do control disease.

The well-directed expenditure of money for the conservation of the public health will bring larger returns in dollars and cents than many another investment, the wisdom of which communities never question. If, for example, tuberculosis could be entirely eliminated as a cause of sickness and death, an average of two and one-half years could be added to the lifetime of every man and woman in the United States. We have amply demonstrated our ability to suppress typhoid fever. Yet, there are still over thirteen thousand deaths each year, most of which could readily be avoided and, further, we would, at the same time, stop the double mortality which occurs for three years among those who survive an attack of typhoid fever. Diseases such as measles, scarlet fever, diphtheria and the other infections of children leave defective ears, hearts and kidneys, which impair efficiency and shorten life. The money value of all these losses is staggering when we stop to realize that human life is our greatest economic asset.

Our program for the next ten years should be to add one year of life to the present average life span of every man and woman in the United States.

WITH THE WISHING FAIRY by CORINNE

Stella Tells About the Elk or Moose.

IT had been a long time since Stella, the Wishing Fairy, had had any one tell her of quite so many troubles as had Mr. Wapiti.

After he had told her of the various different ways Humans had of hunting him and his relations, he asked her to teach him some way of outwitting those Humans who stalked or chased them.

Stella put on her thinking cap and thought and thought and thought!

"For," she explained, "it takes a great deal of thinking to fool Human beings—they are so clever!"

"I know of a way!" she cried, after quite a long while, during which time Mr. Wapiti could hardly keep still, he was so impatient to know what the Fairy was going to say.

"After this," she at length told him, "when Humans follow you as they so often do on horses be sure never to gallop."

"How else can I get away from them?" cried Mr. Wapiti. "If I didn't they would be sure to catch me!"

"Not at all!" Stella exclaimed. "If you keep to a long swinging trot you will tire out even the fastest horse—he will become winded; but if you should gallop you instead of the horse will lose breath. You'd soon become blown—the horse would overtake you and his rider then could easily put an end to you."

* * * * * * * * * * * * * * *

After Mr. Wapiti had gone the little Fairy was telling her four Brownies about his visit.

"I saw him," Pimzie said, "but I wish I knew just what an Elk or Moose looks like. I didn't quite understand Mr. Wapiti when he tried to explain to me about Moose antlers being palm shaped."

"Very well," said Stella, "I'll draw you a picture of one."

And here it is:

"Well," Pimzie cried, when he saw the Fairy's drawing, "at last I know what our Wapiti friend was talking about!" when he saw the Fairy's drawing.

"I, too, want to ask a question," said Snookums. "Just what does 'Moose' mean?"

"It means in Indian language 'Wood Eater,'" said Stella, "and comes from the Indian name 'Musu.'"

"Why?" asked Lorykins, as he lazily stretched himself in the sun. "What's the idea?"

"The idea," Stella said, "is easily understood. The Moose or Elk feed on tender herbs, twigs, roots and bark. In other words, they eat parts of trees—or wood."

"Is that all they live on?" asked Lorykins disgustedly, for he is always more interested in food than are the other three Brownies. "I'd hate that!"

"They sometimes eat grass. And another interesting thing about Moose is their remarkable sense of smell. Unless the wind is blowing away from them they can whiff a hunter from a great distance. It is useless for any one to even try to follow them if the breeze is blowing in their direction."

"Are Moose good fighters?"

"They are awfully fierce when cornered; in fact, they are terribly dangerous. But," Stella added, "a Moose is much less cruel than a Wapiti to his cow (that's what Mrs. Moose is called) and much more faithful."

Camp Humphrey's Notes

Colonel James A. Woodruff, C. E., having been made Commander of Camp Humphreys, succeeding Major General Mason M. Patrick, now Chief of the Air Service, Major Julian L. Schley has succeeded him as assistant commandant, and Major Roscoe C. Crawford becomes Director of Military Engineering in the Engineer School.

Three Engineer Training Companies organized here from the Thirteenth Engineer regiment began their march to their respective stations on Monday morning, October 17th. Company Number One, under command of Captain Eugene M. Caffey, C .E., goes to Boston, Mass. Number two, commanded by Captain Anderson T. W. Moore, C. E. to Fort Slocum, N. Y.; and Number three under Captain Dayid M. Shearer, C. E., to Camp Meade, Md. Each company has an enlisted personnel of 35 men. Chaplain Perry O. Wilcox is accompanying these groups for the first five days of the march. He will return to Camp Humphreys on Saturday.

Major General Mason M. Patrick, now of the Air Service, moved his family to his new station at Washington, . C., on Monday, October 17th Colonel James A. Woodruff and family began to occupy the Commanding Officers' quarters October 18th.

The Sunday evening program at the Liberty Theater October 16th, open with two selection by the Thirteenth Engineer Band, the first Suppe's overture "Poet and Peasant" and the second a quartette from Verdi's "Rigolette." Following the invocation by Chaplain Perry O. Wilcox and the community sing, Colonel Woodruff made brief remarks appropriate to his new position as commander. After another selection by the band, paraphrase, Nesvabda's "How Fair Art Thou." "Humoresque," the well known motion picture was shown.

Colonel Woodruff announced that because of the dwindling of the fund from which the cost of the films is paid it will be necessary to make a slight charge in the future to cover expenses, as we do not wish to cheapen the character of the films, which have in the past been of the highest order, and films cannot be obtained free unless they are of a character much below that of those now shown.

SON SUNDAY

SON SUNDAY

A little late getting started, owing to their inability to get games, the Dreadnaughts usher in the 1921 football season Sunday, on Baggett's field at 3 o'clock with the strong Emerald A. C., of Washington, as their opponents. This team, according to advance dope sent ahead of them, is a good one and last Sunday held the famous Knickerbocker eleven of Georgetown, to one touchdown for a score of 7 to 0. Bear in mind that the D's. are putting a team on the field that has nothing but local boys playing and they deserve your support. The team has been working hard for the past three weeks under the direction of Lieutenant Theron Hayden, Umpire Trigger and Kemp Cockrell, who will referee their contests for them. Also do not forget that this is the only football game in the city Sunday, and we trust the park will be filled with the usual crowd of fans who supported us faithfully during the past base ball season.

Every effort will be made to bring nothing here but the strongest teams that can be booked and no expense will be spared to get them. If you like a winner, follow the D's. Sunday, 3 o'clock on Baggett's field.

INGROWN TOE NAIL
TURNS OUT ITSELF

A noted authority says that a few drops of "Outgro" upon the skin surrounding the ingrowing nail reduces inflammation and pain and so toughens the tender, sensitive skin underneath the toe nail, that it can not penetrate the flesh, and the nail turns naturally outward almost over night.

"Outgro" is a harmless, antiseptic manufactured for chiropodists. However, anyone can buy from the drug store a tiny bottle containing directions.

Trinkle's Great Speech

Richmond, Va., Oct. 19.—The most magnificent defense of the administration of the Democratic party in Virginia during the past 36 years which has so far been made in the present campaign was that delivered by Senator E. Lee Trinkle at Chesterfield Courthouse yesterday before a crowd which over taxed the capacity of the courtroom. The weather was ideal and almost the entire population of Chesterfield was present to receive and listen to the distinguished orator.

With a brass band seated in the jury box with Judge Robert G. Southall, of the Fifth circuit, presiding over the meeting, the next governor of Virginia swayed his audience at will, and was rewarded with repeated and deaftening applause.

Senator Trinkle took up the charges of the Republican opposition and refuted them, one by one. He reverted to the past history of Republican rule in Virginia following the civil war, and flayed it pitilessly. He pointed to Col. Henry W. Anderson, G. O. P., standard bearer, and said that he honored him for being ashamed of his party, and said that he was convinced that Col. Anderson was named of his party for the fact that he studiously avoided any reference to its past history in Virginia or in the South.

The speaker reveiwed the progressive prosperity of his state from a standpoint of material wealth and business advancement, showing that taexs here were less than elsewhere, and that returns on investments were in a larger ratio. He pictured the long list of illustrious sons of Virginia, pausing at the name of Lee, whom a Republican government deprived for a time of the right of franchise.

Those who listened to the address of Senator Trinkle yesterday no longered wondered at his choice by the Democrats for their standard bearer. They no longer attributed his success in the recent primary to the "prohibition vote," to the "support of the women," to "organization strength" or other incidental or collateral forces. They recognized that E. Lee Trinkle was selected by the Democracy of Virginia as its standard-bearer on account of his personality and virile force. They saw in Trinkle a new factor in state political life; a young leader of progressive thought, whose face was indeed "turned towards the rising sun," and who was destined to lead the Democratic party in Virginia, not only to overwhelming victory in November, but to renewed activity and a fuller strength in days that are to come.

The address of Senator Trinkle at Chesterfield last Monday sounded like a bugle-note, clear, strong and convincing. Never was an audience more responsive and seldom has an orator been more forceful or really effective in his delivery. The meeting at Chesterfield was a vindication of Democracy and an ovation for the leader of the Democrats in the present fight.

Senator Trinkle spoke last night at Emporia and will deliver an address tonight in Norfolk, Wherever he speaks the crowds are enthusiastic and his audiences flock in almost unprecedented numbers. In Trinkle the people believe they have discovered a new leader, and the oftener they hear him the more they appear to be convinced.

DO YOU CATCH COLD EASILY?

HOW TO AVOID IT

Colds are due to germs. No One can prevent the germs from getting into your nose and throat. But you can help keep plenty of strong, vigorous, "antibodies" in your blood to fight and kill off the nasty "cold germs" before they do you any harm.

To develop these germ destroying "antibodies" properly, you must have plenty of pure rich, red blood and a strong, vigorous constitution—in fact, this is the best preventative against almost any disease.

If you are weak, nervous or run down, or subject to colds, take no chances. One day you may develop serious throat, bronchial or lung trouble or perhaps pneumonia and you may go off like a shot. Therefore commence to enrich your blood and fortify yourself against "disease germs" today. To build more and better blood and make stronger nerves, there is nothing superior to NUXATED IRON as it contains organic iron like the iron in your blood combined with a product representing the principal chemical constituent of active living nerve force for feeding the nerves. Nuxated Iron may therefore be said to be both a blood and a nerve food. It often increases the bodily and mental vigor, strength and endurance in two weeks' time.

Over 4,000,000 people are using it annually. It has been highly endorsed by former United States Senators, U. S. Army Generals, many physicians and prominent men. Even the Pope at Rome mentioned it favorably in a communication to the Proprietor of the Pharmacy Normale of Paris.

Satisfaction guaranteed or the manufacturers will refund your money. Beware of substitutes. Look for the word "NUXATED" on every package and the letters N. I. on every tablet. Sold by all druggists.

What Is Satisfactory Telephone Service?

TELEPHONE users want and are entitled to satisfactory telephone service. And our idea of service is something more than the completing of individual telephone messages.

Mr. H. B. Thayer, the head of the Bell System, has said: "Satisfactory telephone service means that the user shall be satisfied."

Service is dependent upon every department of the Company and each individual employee. It requires good operating at the switchboard, good engineering of equipment and facilities, good maintenance of the Company's plant, accurate accounting and unfailing courtesy toward our patrons.

These are the technical requirements of good service. But we are not satisfied to go so far and stop. Our aim is to furnish a service of such a quality that we may be certain it gives public satisfaction.

This is the spirit with which every man and woman in our organization tackles the job.
